

Ms. Noonan,

I consider you to be a washed up old hag who can't see history in the making – either made by George Bush or to be made by Sarah Palin.

Now, despite that nasty intro line, I hope you will consider what I have to say. After all, critics can be very helpful, can't they?

I am a graduate of the United States Military Academy (1981) and Johns Hopkins University (1990). I hope I may deign to enter the realm of your highness' intellectual prowess and offer up my not so humble opinion.

If a poll was taken regarding Jesus Christ, would the results matter? Yes and No. But they wouldn't matter on the truth of Him, rather on the state of a nation.

Well, any nation or columnist who can't see the power of Sarah Palin, which is simply the power of a Godly, down-home woman, is a fool. Please read on.

You show your inability to understand even the simplest of things as you sit in your self-described bubble and comment on “regular people” – the title of your article is

Palin's Failin'

What is it she stands for? After seven weeks, we don't know.

Did you write that title? Is so, you should be ashamed, because if you don't know what she stands for, you are a bloviating idiot.

Like, are you kidding me? You don't know what she stands for? Have you been under a rock for seven weeks? I can't begin to tell you how ridiculous is the title to this article.

Well, Miss Peggy, since you are apparently uninformed of what she stands for, let me tell you:

1. She stands for John McCain
2. She stands for Ronald Reagan
3. She stands for me – a Christian husband
4. She stands for my wife – a Christian woman
5. She stands for my son – soon to be a member of the armed forces
6. She stands for Downs' Syndrome children – and their families. This is a revolution is sweeping their households
  - a. If you have one, grab a tissue and read, and watch the video <http://michellemalkin.com/2008/10/16/your-spirit-lifter-of-the-day/>

7. She stands for unwed pregnant teenagers
8. She stands for the unborn – protecting human life authored by God Almighty
9. She stands for the military
10. She stands for energy independence
11. She is against corruption and fat cats
  - a. And she has fought it and beat it
12. She stands for state policeman not tasing 10 year old boys
13. She stands for the right to dismiss politicians who don't do their job
14. She stands for the right to bear arms
15. She stands for the family
16. She stands for traditional marriage as defined by the God of the Bible
17. She stands for the founding father's vision of the USA
18. She stands for understanding history
19. She stands for fiscal accountability

I can't believe you don't know any of the above. Is it really true you couldn't recite even one of the above points?

What is happening with Sarah Palin is nothing short of a revolution. And you can't see that? I thought you were so wise and esteemed? Apparently, I don't know what YOU stand for.

Here is what is happening with Sarah Palin: Ezekial 37:1-14 The Valley of Dry Bones. Sarah Palin has breathed life into the Christian nation. And if you would give her a passing nod of acceptance, you might be part of the revolution. I highly recommend you dust off your Bible and read it.

If you worked for CNN, MSNBC, NPR, etc., I could understand your angle – which is one of delusion and hell-bent on destruction. But I always thought you were reasonable – until you skewered George Bush in the face of history.

Now, George Bush has disappointed me to no end – like a father who abandoned his faith, betrayed his own wife, or simply lost his way. It is very discouraging.

But why is he such a failure? Is it because he is demented? Because Christianity really does make people “twisted”? Because he is just a simpleton?

In case you haven't realized, President Bush is not God. And neither is Sarah Palin.

But both of them are Godly people. Both of them are sinners. Perfect they are not. And neither are you.

No, the real reason for President Bush's failure is simple

- he believed in the goodness of people too much (Iraqis and Americans)
- he has advisors who do not share his vision
- government is run by people who are out to destroy America
- the MSM is out to destroy America – and it's working

Have you written much on the media or the world view of government that is destroying the American way of life?

Have you written of the atrocities, corruption, and flat out idocy of Pelosi, Reid, Cox, Frank, etc.?

Oh, excuse me, I haven't read every article of yours and so I guess I'm not able to have an opinion, am I?

You see, whenever I happen to catch one of your articles, it's always beating the drum on how bad someone is. How they don't live up to your high standards.

Please, can you send me the qualifications / characteristics of how a woman should act who's comes to the national stage? That way I can inform my daughters' how they should act, as obviously Sarah Palin does not meet your lofty standards. OMG – she winked at the camera ! DISQUALIFY THAT WOMAN.

>>"Sometimes the leak is so bad that even a plumber can't fix it." This was the concise summation of a cable political strategist the other day, after the third and final presidential debate.

Obviously a left-leaning cable station. As if I'm supposed to believe that? The holy ones have proffered their opinion and so I should slink back in my seat and wait for Ronald Reagan to rise from the dead?

This is my hero (2nd name on the plane)

>>More than ever on the campaign trail, the candidates are dropping their G's.

OMG – Sarah Palin has not graduated from a finishing school and doesn't enunciate her words correctly. STRIKE HER FROM THE SHORT LIST. C'mon Peggy, what are you doing here? Are you insinuating because Mrs. Palin has an accent she's a country bumpkin? Give me a break.

>>All of the candidates say "mom and dad": "our moms and dads who are struggling."

Again, are you kidding me? We're not allowed to refer to moms and dads as "moms" and "dads"? What principle is being violated here? Please advise

>>This is Mr. Bush's former communications adviser Karen Hughes's contribution to our democratic life, that you cannot speak like an adult in politics now,

Ms. Noonan, you don't live in the world that regular people live in. Please, just ride off into the sunset and bury yourself with RR's book – and get off the scene. You are a destructive force who has some bitter anger that isn't helping anyone, least of all me.

>>that's too austere and detached, snobby.

I can't believe what I am reading. It's "snobby" to say "moms" and "dads"? It's snobby to talk with a bit of a folksy accent?

>>it's all now the faux down-home, patronizing—and infantilizing—moms and dads.

I hate to repeat myself, but are you kidding me?

Why is it faux down-home? Personally, I think it's AUTHENTIC down-home.

And patronizing? Exactly how is it patronizing to say "moms" and "dads"?

And infantilizing? So, as a dad, along with my wife who is a mom, I'm supposed to feel infantilized? because Sarah refers to me as a "dad" and my wife as a "mom"?

Do you have anything better to write about? Like Islamic terrorism? Domestic terrorism? The shenanigans of the Democrats on the CRA, Fannie Mae, Freddie Mac, etc.

You have to spend time eviscerating Sarah Palin because she says "mom" and "dad".

Like I said, you are a washed up old hag who is not in touch with reality.

>>Do politicians ever remember that in a nation obsessed with politics, our children—sorry, our kids—look to political figures for a model as to how adults sound?

Peggy, what are you doing? So I'm not allowed to refer to my kids as "kids"? I can't believe you don't see what is happening – we have someone who relates to US. A mom. A wife. A soon-to-be grandmother. A soldier's mom. A mayor. A governor. And she doesn't fit your mold? THANK GOD FOR THAT !

Conservatives and Republicans, on the other hand, continue to battle it out: Was her choice a success or a disaster?

Let me inform you, since you are missing the point. SHE IS A MONUMENTAL SUCCESS. And you of course can't see this plus you won't know for ten years from now. But for the moment, she is making the Christian nation rise up – get out and go and watch her.

>>You owe your readers not your industry only but your judgment, and you betray instead of serve them if you sacrifice it to what may or may not be their opinion.

You are missing the point. You owe me as your reader the TRUTH. And if you don't know what "Sarah stands for", call me up and we'll discuss.

>>Mrs. Palin came, essentially, from nowhere.

Miss Noonan, are you serious? Why is Alaska considered "nowhere"? Why is being a governor considered "nowhere"? Have you read much about her? I have. She is not a nobody, and she is not from nowhere. She is from everywhere, and she is an every man/woman.

Who appointed you keeper of the political gates, anyway.

>>You have to give people time to show what they have. Because maybe they have magic too.

And what is your definition of time? Seven weeks? She doesn't even need seven weeks. She burst onto the scene during her introduction and then cemented her selection at the convention.

The point that everyone, including your Highness, misses, is that Sarah Palin was ready when she was selected. She has the leadership, vision, fortitude, and family support to make it. Who put on your blinders.

>>But we have seen Mrs. Palin on the national stage for seven weeks now, and there is little sign that she has the tools, the equipment, the knowledge or the philosophical grounding one hopes for, and expects, in a holder of high office.

Are you kidding me? I've seen lots of signs

- her poise in the midst of a firestorm
- her ability to energize the Christian nation

>> the knowledge

What????? Have you not heard of her knowledge of Abraham Lincoln and Ronald Reagan? Did you ever hear BHO or Joe Biden refer to Abraham Lincoln?

>>the philosophical grounding one hopes for, and expects

She has a Christian world-view, is that a problem? That's what I desire in a politician. And I'm so glad that George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, George Bush 41 and 43, had Christian world views.

>>She is a person of great ambition, but the question remains: What is the purpose of the ambition? She wants to rise, but what for?

Again, are you kidding me? She wants to serve. Why can't you see that? What is it about you that can't see a genuine hero who's burst onto the scene? Why are you not able to see her magnetism, her solid background, and her clear and consistent message?

For seven weeks I've listened to her, trying to understand if she is Bushian or Reaganite—a spender, to speak briefly, whose political decisions seem untethered to a political philosophy, and whose foreign policy is shaped by a certain emotionalism, or a conservative whose principles are rooted in philosophy, and whose foreign policy leans more toward what might be called romantic realism, and that is speak truth, know America, be America, move diplomatically, respect public opinion, and move within an awareness and appreciation of reality.

Oh, Peggy. What are you doing? Is she supposed to bow down to you and subject herself to your quizzings so that you may approve of her? She is me. She is my wife. She is my son. She is my daughter. We believe in God and we love this country. THAT's what she stands for. And, oh, by the way, she is a governor who has ALREADY risen on solid principles and has ALREADY shown she has the mettle to mix it up with the big boys.

>>But it's unclear whether she is Bushian or Reaganite. She doesn't think aloud. She just . . . says things.

What - - - like Barak Obama "says things"? And like you "write things"? What the he** are you saying here?

>>Her supporters accuse her critics of snobbery:

Well, yes, that would be you. A Manhattan snob. You've described yourself as such.

>>Maybe she's not a big "egghead" but she has brilliant instincts and inner toughness.

Are you saying here she is "brilliant" and has "inner toughness"? Well, THAT should be your headline.

>>She does not speak seriously but attempts to excite sensation—

Who says she does not speak seriously? What gives you the authority to say that? Please advise.

>>"palling around with terrorists."

This is a brilliant and insightful term. It gets the point across. Isn't that what BHO did / does?

>>If the Ayers case is a serious issue, treat it seriously.

Well, is it serious? If so, treat it seriously, Peggy. Tell the American people about BHO's relationship with Bill Ayers. The press won't. You won't. So she has to tell it in a way that people will listen. She makes sense. You don't.

>>She is not as thoughtful or persuasive as Joe the Plumber

I cannot believe you are spending this entire article tearing her apart. This is EXACTLY what Chris Matthews, Keith Olbermann, Bill Maher, Michael Moore, etc. would say about her. Good company you're keeping, huh, Peggy?

>>In the past two weeks she has spent her time throwing out tinny lines to crowds she doesn't, really, understand.

I'm getting exhausted listening to your rant. So, now, to continue on with MY rant: SHE DOES UNDERSTAND THE CROWDS. That's why they love her. NEWS FLASH: She has energized the conservatives / Christians / Reagan Republicans.

Ask yourself this, Miss Peggy – if John McCain had selected ANY OTHER PERSON for V-P, where do you think he would be now? I can tell you – BHO would have a 20 point lead. Guaranteed.

Sarah Palin is the thing that is keeping him close, and we are praying for John McCain's victory and PRESIDENT SARAH PALIN in 4 or 8 years, hopefully 8. And with the right pick for V-P we'll get another 8 or 16 years.

>>This is not a leader, this is a follower, and she follows what she imagines is the base, which is in fact a vast and broken-hearted thing whose pain she cannot, actually, imagine.

You are not the base. I am the base. And there are more people like me than you, your haughtiness. Wake up.

>>She could reinspire and reinspirit; she chooses merely to excite. She doesn't seem to understand the implications of her own thoughts.

I'm glad this article is almost over, because I am exhausted. I think you made your point - - - Sarah is a joke. How many times do you have to say it? I get your point. It's just DEAD WRONG.

>>No news conferences? Interviews now only with friendly journalists?

Seriously, why should she go somewhere where the truth is twisted? Why? The real message of America, which you have seriously missed, is that this nation hates God. And by extension, George W. Bush and Sarah Palin. And me. And my family. And everyone in my church.

Have you seen the porno movie being made about her? Have you seen the T-shirts on the web with Sarah and John McCain in a compromising position? Have you seen the gross and despicable pictures of John McCain?

Did you write about any of that? That is what America needs to hear. We have slid into the gutter of ugliness, and yet you spend your time bashing a phenomenon who drops her g's and calls moms "moms", dads "dads", and kids "kids".

Peggy, since you keep repeating yourself, I will do the same. You are a washed up old hag.

>>You can't be president or vice president and govern in that style, as a sequestered figure.

The press are enemies of America. Why can't you realize that? Her goal is not to offer herself up for crucifixion to satisfy your holy standards. Her goal is to get the most votes.

Have you written extensively on BHO's lack of press conferences. Does the press investigate him with the same vigor - - - and disdain - - - you are skewering Mrs. Palin?

>>When you don't [offer yourself up to the wolves], when you play only to your little piece, you contribute to its fracturing.
Uh, we are already fractured. Sarah is trying to heal the base, then she can work on healing the nation.

I missed it – did you mention anything about her pro-life stance? Oh, is that fracturing the nation to not be “tolerant” of killing babies? In fact, she has taken the high road in this issue. She has simply said “It’s not what I would do”. And then she followed her beliefs. OMG !

>>In the end the Palin candidacy is a symptom and expression of a new vulgarization in American politics.
So, I’m “vulgar”? I must say it again. I can’t believe what you are saying. If this article had been written by Chris Matthews, it wouldn’t really have bothered me. He’s delusional. But you are such an icon of the right – why are you “vulgarizing” Sarah Palin? What got under your skin?

Please – tell me which female and which male meets your standards who should have been selected as McCain’s V-P?

>>It’s no good, not for conservatism and not for the country.
Uh, you are the problem with this country. You can’t see a shining light coming from the West.

>>And yes, it is a mark against John McCain, against his judgment and idealism.
Hmmm. So I see where you stand on both Sarah Palin and John McCain. What an awful thing to be – an idealist. I’ve been “accused” of that as well. But wait, wasn’t Ronald Reagan an “idealist”? Oops.

>>I gather this week from conservative publications that those whose thoughts lead them to criticism in this area are to be shunned, and accused of the lowest motives.
Well, what is your motive? To destroy the only hope we have? To allow BHO to be ushered in to the Presidency? God help us, if that happens.

>>In one now-famous case, Christopher Buckley was shooed from the great magazine his father invented.
I don’t know the details on this, but I did see he was voting for BHO. He may be rightly mad at the conservative movement, but does that justify becoming a traitor? Please answer my question.

>>In all this, the conservative intelligentsia are doing what they have done for five years.
Peggy, my not friend, it’s one thing to engage in spirited debate. And I think President Bush has failed on many, if not most counts. Except the Iraq war. But the problem is the conservatives who oppose Bush are unwittingly joining the ranks of those whose aim is to DESTROY AMERICA. So while I don’t like most of what George Bush has done, the last straw being the $700B bailout, I still stick up for my team. Because the other side is he** bent on destroying America.

And why does there exist Bush Derangement Syndrome? And now Palin Derangement Syndrome. Because both represent God, and the USA media and intelligentsia HATE GOD. And apparently you do to.

>>If [the conservative intelligentsia] had stood for conservative principle and the full expression of views, instead of attempting to silence those who opposed mere party, their movement, and the party, would be in a better, and healthier, position.
Peggy, the main point which you entirely miss, is this - - - the entire MSM is he** bent on destroying our way of life. George Bush is simply another vestige of the Judeo-Christian heritage. The radicals of the 60’s now run the MSM, Hollywood, etc. And Bill Ayers is a professor at a once-fine institution. We have ALREADY LOST. The nation has been turned over to un-godly people.

And yet you whine because Sarah Palin winks at the camera. All the while they make porno movies of her and no one bats an eye. Please advise – what would happen if someone would attempt to make a porno movie starring a BHO look alike, or a Michelle Obama look alike? All he** would break loose, and you know it.

>>At any rate, come and get me, copper.

Sorry, don't get your point or your reference. I guess I'm too much of a hick.

Oh, one more thing. Here's the Sarah Palin effect:

The Sarah Palin Effect

The Sarah Palin Effect is simple yet powerful aka The effect of a Godly woman

- Tell it straight and do the right thing
- Stand on principle
- The power of the people
- Work together as a team, pull your own weight. No one is better than another
- The family is the foundation of society
- Men and men and women are women – and thank God for that !
- Men and women are equal
- Babies are precious
- God is relevant and it's ok to believe he's got a plan
- Live your life as if it is an open book
- The USA is an awesome country, founded on sound principles
- It's important to study history

---

What's happening in the country today, with the explosion of Sarah Palin

It's the Valley of Dry Bones, Ezekial 37:1 – 14

---

Other associated components of the Palin Effect

- Personal Fitness
- Fiscal Fitness